GFTA-2 Supplemental norms: Are you missing out? - Speech 2U

As stated in the GFTA-2 manual, articulation ability is not normally distributed in the general population in the same way as many other abilities. The expectation that children master all sound production by age 8 makes the "normal curve" for articulation inherently skewed. Many state/district's qualification criteria for special services are based on a system of using percentiles derived from forcing articulation data into a normalized distribution scale.
