“Inside the Whale” is a gigantic essay which is a review of Henry Miller’s Tropic of Cancer (the book is its focal point), but also spans out to discuss

English literature during the crucial decades of Orwell's life: the 1920s to the 1940s. Everything busted apart then. The 19th century structures were done. It was a new world now.
